

MODULE G (5 POINTS)
AND THE WINNER IS...

1)What was the goal of the group that met in San Francisco?
II)To suggest subjects for the Foundation's awards.

2)What do we learn about incentive prizes from lines 8-17?
iii)They proved to be useful.
vi)Some of them had unexpected effects.

3)What did the incentive prizes offered by RASE and Sallotech have in common?
Answer:Their impact has gone beyond their original purposes.//There were many various responses to them//They generated a wealth of creative ideas.

4)In what way is the Sallotech competition similar to most competitions analyzed in the Harvard study?
Its winners were from outside the specific field .//weren't professionals in the field

5)What is the "trend" referred to line 30?
Answer: Governments around the world turning to incentive prizes// Governments around the world have recently begun turning to incentive prizes.

6)Thomas Kalil explains why government involvement in incentive prizes isn't affected by political considerations.// government involvement in incentive prizes isn't a problem.// government involvement in incentive prizes can be positive.

7)Which of the following points does the writer make in lines 27-37?
iv)Governments involvement in incentive prizes might be problematic.